6. RIGGING - JIGHEAD

Chapter 6 - Rigging - Jighead

In this chapter we look at selecting a standard jighead and how to effectively rig a soft plastic on a standard jighead. When selecting a standard jighead you need to consider the weight of the jighead, size of the hook, gauge of the hook - fine or heavy wire and the style of the jighead. We will base our rigging on the popular TT Lures HeadlockZ jighead as this jighead is designed with a 'head lock' grub keeper that makes rigging simple and it will secure the ZMan 10X Tough soft plastics in place, along with other brands of plastics.

Jighead Weight

Jigheads range in weight from as light as 1/60oz up to around 8oz, to suit everything from finesse bream and trout fishing to deep offshore fishing. Popular weights in the rivers, estuaries and impoundments range from around 1/28oz to 1/2oz, bay to offshore around 1/8oz - 3oz and those fishing big plastics in very deep water and strong currents may even push beyond the 3oz weight.

Important things to consider when selecting a jighead weight is where in the water column the target species is holding, current, depth, casting distance and the plastic you are fishing with, for example a plastic with action will sink slower than a jerkbait style plastic.

You will notice that most anglers carry a selection of weights to cover a variety of situations, target species and soft plastic styles. Over time anglers grow the contents of their jighead tray, learn which are their go-to heads and build a stock of their favourites. Here's a few general examples of some popular weights that anglers may carry in their kit for different species and situations -

Bream - 1/20oz, 1/16oz, 1/12oz, 1/8oz, 1/6oz, 1/4oz / Bass - 1/8oz, 1/4oz, 3/8oz, 1/2oz Flathead - 1/8oz, 1/4oz, 3/8oz, 1/2oz / Snapper - 1/8oz, 1/4oz, 3/8oz, 1/2oz, 3/4oz, 1oz

General River / Estuary - 1/16oz, 1/8oz, 1/4oz, 3/8oz, 1/2oz General Offshore - 1/8oz, 1/4oz, 3/8oz, 1/2oz, 1oz, 1 1/2oz, 2oz

When it comes to hook size it's important to select a hook size that suits your target species and then select a plastic that suits both the hook size and target species. Check out the guide at the end of this PDF to assist you to select a jighead hook size to suit your chosen ZMan soft plastic.

When selecting a jighead you will also note that the hook size will have a letter next to it, generally an 'L' meaning light wire or fine wire hook, 'H' for heavy wire and 'XH' for extra heavy. Fine or light wire hooks are constructed from finer wire which gives them the ultimate penetration, however they are not as strong as the heavy and extra heavy hooks, making them more suitable to experienced angler and those fishing light lines and light drag settings. Heavy and extra heavy wire hooks are preferred for general fishing and TT Lures ensure these heavier hooks are still super sharp by building their jigheads on black nickel, chemically sharpened hooks. An easy way to differentiate between HeadlockZ Finesse - fine wire and HeadlockZ HD - heavy / extra heavy wire is by the 'L' or 'H' / 'XH' but also HeadlockZ Finesse packaging has a blue top and black bottom, while the HeadlockZ HD is reversed with a black top and blue bottom.

5. RIGGING - JIGHEAD

Chapter 6 - Rigging - Jighead

Step 1 -

Take a basic measurement / mental note of where the hook needs to exit the plastic to be rigged nice and straight.

Step 2 -

Thread the point of the hook through the centre of the head / nose of the plastic, like threading on a worm.

Continue to thread the plastic onto the hook, keeping the hook running through the centre of the plastic. If you start to run off centre simply pull the plastic back off the hook a little and then continue.

Step 4 -

Once you have reached the exit point that you noted earlier, push the hook point out through the top of the plastic.

Step 5 -

Once the hook point exits the plastic pull the plastic down onto the bend of the hook, then push it up and over the 'head lock' grub keeper and snug against the jighead. You can then pull it back a little so that it is sitting straight on the hook and give it a swim in the water to ensure it is swimming correctly.

If you exit the plastic too far along you will find that you have too much plastic bunched onto the hook and it will not sit straight.

If you exit the plastic too soon you will find that you do not have enough plastic on the hook to secure it on the keeper.

This rigging guide is designed to assist you when matching a ZMan soft plastic and TT Lures HeadlockZ jighead.

The HeadlockZ grub keeper has been designed to lock on the 10X Tough, yet super-soft and realistic, ZMan ElaZtech soft plastic, cast after cast, fish after fish!

ZMan Soft Plastics

- 10X Tough better stands up to pickers and toothies, more fish per lure.
- Super-soft realistic feel maximum action and fish keep biting!
- Buoyant rig to fish topwater to deep.
- Buoyant Tail up action attracts fish and triggers Strikes.

TT HeadlockZ Finesse

- Built on a fine gauge, Japanese hook for the ultimate penetration with light lines and light drag settings.
- Unique 'head lock' grub keeper.

TT HeadlockZ HD Jighead

- Built on a brutally strong, chemically sharpened Mustad black nickel hook.
- Unique 'head lock' grub keeper.

TT HeadlockZ Extreme

 Beast of a hook available in 9/0 and 10/0 to suit XOS plastics.

Caring for your ZMan

- Store ZMan in their original packets - they may react with other plastics.
- Avoid storing lures in extreme heat for maximum life.
